INTRODUCTION

Simmern Kreis (administrative district) is an area of 571 square kilometers in the Land (state) of Rheinland-Pfalz, German Federal Republic. Generally, the district is hilly, almost mountainous; its most prominent feature is the Hunsrueck, the slate mountains between the Rhine, Mosel, and Nahe rivers. The Kreis is part of the Koblenz Regierungsbezirk (administrative region), and emigration records are to be found for the most part in the Staatsarchiv Koblenz. In 1960 only 20% of the inhabitants of Kreis Simmern were engaged in industrial occupations, attesting to the largely agricultural nature of the area.

All of the nineteenth-century emigrants listed in this monograph would have declared themselves to be Prussian subjects, because the district had fallen to the Kingdom of Prussia in 1815 as a result of the reorganization of central Europe at the Congress of Vienna. Before that time, the district had been a fief of the Simmern branch of the Wittelsbach family, whose origins were in Bavaria. The Pfalz-Simmern line of the family had become Calvinists (Reformed) in 1556 and 1583 and, as a consequence, the population of the district is today largely protestant (59%), despite the fact that in neighboring districts of Regierungsbezirk Koblenz the inhabitants are predominantly Catholic.

The list of emigrants in this monograph has been adapted and translated from two articles published in Germany in 1935 and 1938.<sup>1</sup> The second article summarizes the statistical data derived from both articles. It is reported that a total of 2,392 emigrants left Kreis Simmern between 1816 and 1900: 879 (37%) went to Brazil, 1,342 (56%) to the United States, 115 (5%) to England, and 55 (2%) to Algiers, the Dutch colonies, and Russian Poland. Brazil was the most popular country of settlement until 1852, when a large contingent (154 persons) left for the United States. Thereafter, emigration to the United States was larger than that to Brazil, excepting in 1857. It seems likely from the records that settlement in Brazil was restricted to a few areas of that country. As will be seen from the lists, most immigrants to England were bakers. Why London had such an attraction for these craftsmen is not explained, but the German compiler reports that many of the bakers became well-to-do there. He also points out that on 11 July 1851 the State of New York had passed a law prohibiting the landing of immigrants having less than $20 in their possession. Travel agents responsible for some Simmern immigrants in Albany had then to transport them out of the state, via Buffalo, to Sandusky, Ohio. These agents then routed further immigrants through the port of New Orleans, with the consequence--and to the immigrants' advantage, no doubt--that these poor people were placed nearer the advancing frontiers of the country, where land was cheap and plentiful.

1. The emigrants from Amt Gemuenden were listed in an article by Walter Diener, entitled "Auswanderer aus den Ortschaften der Buergermeisterei Gemuenden (Hunsrueck) [Emigrants from the Villages of Gemuenden Mayoral District]" in Rheinische Vierteljahrsblätter: Mitteilungen des Instituts fuer Geschichtliche Landeskunde der Rheinlaende an der Universitaet Bonn, 5 (1935): 215-222. The lists for all other Aemter were published in Walter Diener, "Die Auswanderung aus dem Kreise Simmern (Hunsrueck) in 19. Jahrhundert [Nineteenth-Century Emigration from Kreis Simmern]," in Ibid., 8 (1939): 91-148.

Researchers finding names of immigrant ancestors herein will want to check the microfilm holdings of the Genealogical Society of Utah, Salt Lake City, for further information on them. As of 1979, the Society held church-record microfilms for the following congregations: The holdings are coded as follows: C = Catholic parish record; E = Evangelical Lutheran parish record; 1 = eighteenth century; 2 = nineteenth century. Thus C2 would indicate that the Society holds the microfilm of a Catholic parish record covering the nineteenth century.
